DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

Claims 1 and 16-25 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 103 as being unpatentable over JP 63-065039 (PTO-1449, November 6, 2008).

JP 63-065039 discloses the features including the claimed Cu based alloy composition for semiconductor (abstract). The content of each element in the Markush group is the maximum. Since there is no evidence that the claimed Mn/Si, Al and/or other elements' ranges are critical, the overlapped elements and proportions would make claimed composition obvious. The instant claims fail to disclose/define the structure of sputtering target which reads on semiconductor member of cited reference.

Moreover, the Cu alloy is known as sputtering target for semiconductor thin-film wiring. As stated in In re Peterson, 315 F.3d 1325, 1329-30, 65 USPQ2d 1379, 1382 (Fed. Cir. 2003), that “A prima facie case of obviousness typically exists when the ranges of a claimed composition overlap the ranges disclosed in the prior art”. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to select any portion of range, including the claimed range, from the broader range disclosed in a prior art reference because the prior art reference finds that the prior art composition in the entire disclosed range has a suitable utility. Also see MPEP § 2131.03 and § 2123.

The intended-use of the copper alloy sputtering target for forming a thin film seed layer is material property and can be done by copper alloys of cited references.

With respect to the instant claimed optional elements and impurities that they have the contents read on zero; thus, cited reference does not have to disclose those elements.

Claim 26 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over JP 63-065039 as applied to claims above, and further in view of USP 6113761 to Kardokus et al.

JP 63-065039 discloses the features substantially as claimed as set forth in the rejection above except for the recited grain size. However, Kardokus teaches grain size no more than 50 μm to improve uniform film thickness in the same field of endeavor or the analogous metallurgical art. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art of the cited references at the time the invention was made to refine grain size as taught by Kardokus in order to improve/provide uniform film thickness (See Kardokus, col. 1, lines 25-30). In re Venner, 120 USPQ 193 (CCPA 1958), In re LaVerne, et al., 108 USPQ 335, and In re Aller, et al., 105 USPQ 233.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 35-38 are allowed.

The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: The transitional expression “consisting of” in claim 35 has excluded addition essential elements from JP 63-065039.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

Applicant is reminded that when amendment and/or revision is required, applicant should therefore specifically point out the support for any amendments made to the disclosure. See 37 C.F.R. § 1.121; 37 C.F.R. Part §41.37 (c)(1)(v); MPEP §714.02; and MPEP §2411.01(B).
